A DAD struggling to make ends meet was able to earn a whopping £1.6million after devising a legal method to win big on roulette tables.

Gonzalo Garcia Pelayo, from

Spain, noticed that certain numbers appeared to come up more often on the roulette wheels and so made it his mission to find out why.

Dubbed the King of the roulette wheel, now 75, he set about watching and recording as many spins as possible at his local casino, the Casino Gran Madrid, over several months.

Determined to beat the game he realised that each roulette table had slight imperfections, and no matter how small it threw up certain numbers that could be predicted by the player.

He used his computer to complete an in-depth analysis of the results which lead to the high roller creaming over £1.6million from casinos around the world.

The dad-of-five also got his kids, Ivan and Vanessa, to help carry out his master plan and sent them to other casinos to record data on the roulette wheels.

But when the venues noticed the family raking in the cash, they grew suspicious and even took Gonzalo to court.

But in another stroke of luck, the courts ruled that his method of predicting results was completely legal and that he was using the data to make an educated guess.

In an interview, Gonzalo said: "I like tricking casinos because they are like the enemy.

"...Myself and casinos are enemies- it's not like we are friends when we finish. When we finish we are still enemies.

"They are very pretentious and ignorant."

He added: "I estimate that as a normal player I win once every three days.

"If this player is a bit lucky, he could win two or three times which would put him on top.

"What happens is that after, there will be another one who will have bad luck and not win once every three days, win once every five days- which already is a huge advantage for the casino.

"But if it's a local small casino, it is possible for the casino to lose that month."

When asked how he managed to work out the magical formula, he said: "Basically it was about analysing the limits of luck.

"I think this was the fundamental idea, not only for the casino but for all my life- that luck has its limits.

"And I think this was a complete revelation- good and bad.

"It's very important- I know it's a bit philosophical but everything has its limitations and so does luck.

"A very quick example: Toss a coin 100 times, heads or tails. It makes sense to get about 50-50.

"Then luck affects the result and in cases we might get 52-48 or 55-45."

"It is practically impossible to get more than what you want- let's assume you want heads 65 time."

"There's a limit of luck- but it's also impossible to get less than what you want."

FAMILY BUSINESS

Born in Madrid in 1947, Gonzalo's military father died when he was just five and the family moved to Seville.

It was here that he first showed an interest in music and began working in a nightclub and at a radio station.

He

went on to study music and film and rubbed shoulders with the stars but was still struggling to earn enough cash to raise his family.

After visiting his local casino he noticed that some winning numbers came up more often than others - he set about finding out why.

He noticed slight differences in the pocket sizes, and the wheel's gears, and spotted unlevel floors which could all affect the spin.

He studied the Casino Gran

Madrid's roulette tables for months, noting down each and every win - but not placing any wagers.

After recording 30,000 results, it revealed that some numbers could come up as often as every 28 throws.

He then put all of his collected data into his computer for analysis meaning he could predict the outcome of every roulette he played.

The

gambling fanatic realised that the system didn't mean the player would win every time but gave them a 6 percent advantage and meant they could beat the house over a long run.

To cover his losses, he initially had to bankroll the scheme by selling the rights to one of his documentaries - but when the money started rolling in he no longer needed to.

Gonzalo was determined to try his method elsewhere and recruited his eldest son, Ivan, and eldest daughter, Vanessa, to collect results from other casinos across Madrid.

In 1991, the trio began playing, and less than a year later they won £620,000.

Eventually, the team scooped £1.6million in winnings from Las Vegas, Australia, Denmark, Holland and Austria when they were banned from Spain and forced to play abroad.

They would disguise their accents to try and blend into the tourists but staff began to notice their suspicious behaviour.

6 The incredible story was made into a film after the family won over £1.6million with the legal scheme

6 In the 2012 film

based on the family's story, they infiltrate casinos to watch as many roulette spins as possible

In 2004, after being taken to court by the Casino de Madrid a judge ruled that the family were not cheaters and had used fair methods to guess the outcome of the spins.

After a ten-year court battle, Gonzalo cleared his name and was able to enter Madrid casinos once more.

But despite the ruling, he refused to go back and instead would sue the venue for £800,000 in lost earnings.

After several years he won and the gambling operator was forced to pay up for the 'emotional distress' caused.

During his years in exile from the Spanish casinos, he wrote a book in 2003, The Fabulous Story of Pelayos, about his family's legal method to win big.

In fact, the family's story was even made into a film in 2012, 'Winning Streak' starring actors Daniel Bruhl and Lluís Homar.

Now at the age of 75, he focuses on making movies and has produced 17 films as well as producing music.

But says he now prefers a flutter on the horses in the UK and is currently working on a system that would allow him to lose just one race a year.

He

told Vice: "I like it and it amuses me. When I don't have much to do, I spend a lot of my time with it.

"...I have just finished a year of horse racing with the current system, and now I am closing the exercise.

"There have been 11,500 races, we have won 9 months and lost 3 and the goal is to only lose one."

Last week, the Sun reported on a £260,000 bet that is being branded the biggest scandal in poker history.

Newcomer

player Robbi Jade Lew, 35, beat regular Garrett Adelstein in a game by going all in on a bad hand in a Los Angeles casino.

Her move left viewers stunned as Garrett accused her of using a vibrator to cheat.

The casino has launched an investigation into the claims and Lew gave Garrett back £120,000 following the accusations.

Tempos antigos: a importância do almoço no local de trabalho

Há muito tempo, quando trabalhava roulette ie uma escritório, nós tratávamos o almoço muito a sério. Isso significava se levantar dos nossos escritórios, usar as nossas pernas e comer com outra pessoa para fins de conversa. Às vezes isso acontecia mesmo fora, ou roulette ie um restaurante. Parece ridículo agora. Quem tem tempo para se socializar no meio do dia ou gastar R$20 roulette ie um sanduíche quando poderia estar sentado na roulette ie mesa, olhando para o internet, roendo sobras de um recipiente plástico roulette ie casa? (Ou, se você já estiver roulette ie casa, seja honesto, fazendo uma siesta.)

Se esse reflexo de "matar a alegria" for um efeito colateral da idade - para a maioria das pessoas, o tempo é menos seu próprio à medida que envelhecem - também é, parece, um sinal dos tempos. Dois estudos recentes nos EUA indicam que, nos últimos quatro ou cinco anos, os americanos têm gasto menos dinheiro ao meio-dia - 3,3% a menos, de acordo com um aplicativo de pagamentos, Square - e também se movimentam menos no meio do dia.

Um estudo sobre a recuperação pós-Covid no centro das cidades, realizado pela Universidade de Toronto no início deste ano, descobriu que nos distritos comerciais centrais da maioria das cidades norte-americanas há uma queda acentuada nos níveis de atividade durante as horas de trabalho desde a pandemia. Isso se deve roulette ie parte ao aumento do trabalho remoto. Mas pode ser também que o próprio conceito de uma hora do almoço esteja roulette ie declínio.

A importância da hora do almoço na cultura americana

Nos EUA, como nós comemos almoços nos dias úteis sempre tem sido um barômetro para as atitudes culturais roulette ie relação ao trabalho. Pense roulette ie 1987 e no filme Wall Street, roulette ie que o almoço de Gordon Gekko é para covardes foi ele mesmo um reflexo de "café é para fechadores", de Glengarry Glen Ross. A produtividade competitiva, um recurso sólido da vida cultural americana e britânica nos últimos 40 anos, provavelmente sempre estará conosco de alguma forma ou outra. O que é curioso é que, roulette ie uma era de inflação alta e estagnação salarial, parece provável que pular o almoço seja menos uma expressão de ambição roulette ie alta marcha - Negócios! Negócios! Projetos! Projetos! - e mais como uma peça de expediência entorpecida.

Tenho que dizer que eu mesmo sou bastante entorpecido sobre o almoço hoje roulette ie dia. Eu gostaria de ter uma hora no final do dia do que passar uma ferrando no meio. A pessoa que quer se encontrar com você para o almoço é pior do que a pessoa que quer se encontrar com você para o café da manhã (ninguém quer roulette ie reunião de café da manhã, pare). Os franceses, estou certo, ainda estão comendo refeições de três pratos antes de retornar aos seus escritórios às 3 da tarde, mas isso não funciona aqui, na terra de férias anuais de duas semanas e nenhuma licença maternidade paga. Etc etc.

À medida que eu digito isso, percebo que não acredito nisso, o que faz um caso elevado para o que é, de fato, preguiça social e física entronizada. A verdade é que não saio ou me encontro com pessoas para o almoço na maioria das vezes porque a maior parte do tempo simplesmente não tenho vontade. Eu preferiria
